Dear Parents/Carers,

Because your children care about their friends, when they arrive home they may tell you that a member Mallard class fell into the pond in the school's environmental area today.

Please assure your child(ren) that, having spoken to her mum, Phoebe is all right, looking forward to a quiet weekend and seeing everyone in school on Monday.

As with all people, children react in different ways to incidents which are out of the ordinary, so please keep an eye out for any changes in behaviour which may suggest concern about their friends.

Mallard Class has had a conversation about staying calm and reacting in a way which does not wind each other up, but some children do like to take opportunities to talk through what they have seen; please do give them that chance if they want it – and let us know if there are any reactions because we can look after them in school.

I hope you and your children have a quiet and restful weekend, at the end of SATs week.

Take care,
